DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

> A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –
>
> (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Wang et al (J. Agric. Food Chem. 1998).

Wang et al disclose a compound designated as Hapten II (p 3331). This compound represents a species of the compound of general formula I of the present invention and therefore anticipates the instant claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Defossa et al (US 6,506,778).

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Defossa et al (US 6,506,778).

The instant claims are drawn to acylphenylurea derivatives of formula I, and to a pharmaceutical composition comprising said derivative(s) and a method of using said derivative(s) for lowering blood sugar, i.e., treating type II diabetes.

Defossa et al teach acylphenylurea derivatives as pharmaceuticals for treating type II diabetes. The compound of formula (I) taught in Defossa et al is of the same scope of the compound of formula I of the instant claims, specifically, when substituent A of the compound in Defossa et al is a phenyl or substituted phenyl group.

The instant claims are therefore rendered obvious over Defossa et al because a person having ordinary skill in the art could readily select a compound in Defossa et al that is a species of the compound of general formula I of the present invention, and employ said compound to treat type II diabetes as suggested by Defossa et al.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-10 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-10 of U.S. Patent No. 6,506,778. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the compound of formula (I) taught in US 6,506,778 is of the same scope of the compound of formula I of the instant claims, specifically, when substituent A of the compound in US 6,506,778 is a phenyl or substituted phenyl group.

The instant claims are therefore not found to be patentably distinct because a person having ordinary skill in the art could readily select a compound in US 6,506,778 that is a species of the compound of general formula I of the present invention, and employ said compound to treat type II diabetes as is claimed in both the instant claims and those of US 6,506,778.
